Madison County snags baseball team

Stadium for Gateway Grizzlies will be built near I-255 and I-55/70 interchange Collinsville officials threw Fairview Heights a curve ball Tuesday, landing the Gateway Grizzlies minor league baseball team after the latter's negotiations with the team's ownership lagged.

A proposed $5.2 million ballpark would be built on 20 acres near Eastport Plaza on the northeast corner of the intersection of Interstates 255 and 55/70. Financing still must be approved by the Collinsville City Council and Madison County Board.

Old ties between Schaeffer and Rich Saugel, managing partner of the Frontier League team, sparked the deal. "It all boils down to relationships," Schaeffer said. "Saugel called me up the day after the election. He said, 'I know you. I read your positions on economic development in the elections.' He said, 'Are you interested?' I said, 'Yes.' 'I've known him for years. I've known him from Our Lady of Assumption softball in a 35-and-over softball league. I know at least one of the investors, Tom Keefe. I coached him in basketball at Assumption (High School in East St. Louis). So I know of a number of these investors so I think that is how it played out."

"I've already heard of one big business that wants to come in because of this. That is a start, and that is good news."

Stan Schaeffer
Mayor

Collinsville Mayor Stan Schaeffer hesitated to call the agreement "a coup" so early in his first term as mayor. "You can say it will (be a coup) but if they storm the castle with torches, we'll find out," Schaeffer said. "I know (St. Clair) County Board members over there, and I feel badly about it. I felt we needed an economic generator, and that is what it is all

County officials fight Darr decision

Judge reversed administrator's firing

By Dennis Grubaugh

Madison County officials are fighting a judge's decision to reverse the firing of a department head in 1994 for wrecking a county vehicle while intoxicated.

The decision to grant a new review hearing for Lanny H. Darr, former head of the county's Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, has potentially far-reaching ramifications, but attorneys are quietly seeking a settlement.

"I hope so," said John Gilbert, special assistant state's attorney representing the county. "That's what we're

The Granite City Police Department has been under intense media scrutiny the past week because of the low number of citations given to drunken drivers since January.

newspapers has been taken out of context.

Village still looking for companies interested in mine

The city of Madison will try for a third time to interest companies in sand and gravel mining on its property near the Milan Landfill.

One of those that may be interested is the consultant who is overseeing the project for the city.

At Tuesday's meeting, the City Council seeking development proposals for 119-acre site

Council approved seeking proposals for a mining operation on its "North Barrow" property.

The city sought development proposals on the 119-acre property twice last year. If successful, the city would be paid a royalty on materials mined from the property.

In March, consultant Glenn O'Bryan obtained approval to do test dredging on the property, located north of the landfill. O'Bryan said Tuesday that despite the failure of a company to offer a proposal, eventually it will become a viable project.

"My belief is that someday this is going to make sense to somebody," he said.

He said the two major factors were initial capital investment and transportation costs. "It's right in the center of all sorts of things," he said.

He cited planned road improvements and the proposed new bridge over the Mississippi River as projects that would need sand and gravel. He also said Gov. George Ryan's Illinois First program would also boost the potential market in the area.

The Council also approved suspending O'Bryan's consultant agreement to allow him to

Letters to the editor People have right to privacy

TO THE EDITOR:

Did our forefathers not say in the U.S. Constitution that people are entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness? Also, did our forefathers not place rules within the Constitution, known as Amendments, to protect the right of the people?

The Fourth Amendment is one of those rules, stating that the people have the right to be secure in their person, houses, belongings or papers against unreasonable searches or seizures, and that no one can violate the right that no warrants will be issued but upon probable cause (proof of a violation of the law), supported by oath or affirmation, that shall particularly describe the place, the persons, the things to be seized or searched.

The Fourth Amendment became part of the original Bill of Rights to stop Writ of Assistance (general warrants), because our forefathers believed that a person's right to privacy was important. The Fourth Amendment has no gray areas that say business can establish Writs of Assistance (drug testing). Also, it does not say that society has the power to impose Mala Prohibita laws (nonpermissible rules imposed by society to regulate particular types of behavior).

Now, if searches can only be by the rules set forth within the Fourth Amendment, then why are people being forced to comply with drug testing? Where is it in the Constitution that says that people have to give up their rights, just to earn a living?

If the people have the right under the First Amendment to express grievances about constitutional wrongs, then why does the Supreme Courts, both state and federal levels, not listen to the people?

If the Supreme Courts fails to uphold the Constitution of the United States, can the people ask for their resignations? If so, I am asking.

Show elected officials that the public can still vote

TO THE EDITOR:

Voters of Madison County, apparently our elected officials think we are all stupid or just don't care how we feel.

I'm on a fixed income just as many of you are. In the past few months, I have been watching the actions of our Madison County Board chairman and the Madison County Democratic Party chairman in regard to giving their "political buddies" huge retirement benefits at the taxpayers' expense. This doesn't surprise me, but the lack of interest from the voters does.

It is time to tell these supposedly elected representatives of the people "no more" and kick them out of office.

If your County Board representative supported these actions, let them know that they have had your vote for the last time and what they did was wrong and we the voters are not going to tolerate their actions any longer.

We the voters have let this happen and really can't blame anyone but ourselves. It is past time to get out and vote and let these self-interested politicians know we are up to their games and back-room deals that cheat the taxpayers out of their hard-earned money.

Let's say "no" to (Mac) Warfield and (Rudy) Papa. Let's get back out and vote and let them know that their game is up. These men count on voter apathy to continue lining their and their political buddies' pockets, again let's start from this day on voting and letting these tax-stealing "so-called elected officials" know we are not putting up with it anymore.

This year we will pay more than $3 million in taxes statewide for the actions of elected officials taking care of their pals.

Who's to blame for violent acts?

In order to share a solution, we first must all share the blame

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

As the group talked, words like "hard" and "soft" targets were bandied about, and the need for better intelligence was cited.

With the air war going on in the Balkans, it would be easy to imagine that it was a group of politicians or military strategists trying to get us out of that mess.

If it was it would be understandable.

But it wasn't.

Instead, it was a school district superintendent talking to the Rotary during a prayer breakfast.

And I couldn't help thinking "God help us, it's come to this."

Dr. Steve Balen, superintendent in the Granite City School District, was talking about safety in response to the school shootings in Colorado.

This was before the most recent shootings in Georgia.

He said there needs to be a change in perception that schools are "soft" targets.

Hard and soft in this case is a military term referring to how easy it is to either destroy or penetrate something.

Harder the target, the harder to hurt it. But to make a school completely safe, if such a thing is possible, would turn it into a prison where nobody would be able to learn anything but fear and paranoia.

He also talked about the need for better internal intelligence - basically, students and teachers telling administrators when someone is acting strangely or appears to be about to go over the edge, and administrators having the sense to listen and act.

He also talked about the media's role in the desensitizing of children to violence, the availability of weapons and instructions in their manufacture and use, materialism and a lack of moral instruction.

Because of the shootings, school safety has become a hot topic, with most of the big names coming down easily on their respective sides and willing to fight to the death to protect their own individual sacred cows.

The left wing blames guns, happily forgetting that we are already overloaded with laws that are not enforced, and the political climate makes it impossible to have an intelligent debate on what controls are needed.

Instead, they dust off their same old ideas and try to ram 'em down our throats.

On the right, they blame the lack of prayer in the classroom, trench coats or some other weird clothing, and who knows what on the internet and media.

Never mind that every generation's parents think the music their kids listen to will send them to hell in a hand basket, and most kids look weird to their parents.

They forget that the only God in most classrooms is what the students bring in themselves, and formal prayer in school rarely accomplished anything, except allowing principals to use fear of God as another punishment.

They also seem to forget that bomb-making has always been fascinating to teenage guys - remember Abbie Hoffman's "Steal This Book" and the pipe-bomb and napalm recipes inside - but only recently did they decide to start using them with such vigor against fellow students.

Does it sound like I think none of them are right?

No.

I think all of them are right, but most people seem to have fallen into the trap of thinking that the problem exists in a vacuum, and that dealing with their pet issues will solve the whole problem.

We do have an entertainment industry that displays and encourages violence without meaning or context. We have advanced our ability to make weapons - both individually and as a people - far beyond our ability to use them wisely.

We have a news industry - both television and print - that takes the worst aspects of our lives and rubs our noses in it to the point you cannot help but become jaded an cynical. We have access to unlimited information, but don't have the will-power, sense or decency to use it well.

Our school system has abdicated teaching moral values in favor of self-esteem and diversity - admirable qualities, but useless or even destructive without a moral context.

Is there a solution? Yes, if all sides would decide to fully consider the issue and bring all their sacred cows to the table, something could be done. It would take time and be painful, but it could happen.

But it won't happen.

Americans have always worshipped individual liberties, but the "rugged individualists" of the pioneer days have transformed into selfish, petty people more interested in their own rice bowl or personal agenda than the common good.

So instead of real change, we'll get a few legislative Band-Aids slapped on, and people will feel good about it until the next tragedy happens.

Then, when we've become so frightened that we can't see straight, we'll do something really stupid, overreact and probably shred the Constitution in the process.

My fear is that we are seeing a major change in American society, and the first baby steps to real fascism in this country.

But how do we really solve the problem?

You'd have to ask Solomon, because I don't know.

In one sense, it was appropriate for Balen to be addressing a prayer group.

God only knows what to do about it.

County Board cites growth, redraws precinct boundaries

Collinsville and Troy gain some new voting areas

By Curtiss A. Hartley
Staff writer

Population growth in some parts of Madison County has created a need for more precincts.

MADISON COUNTY So the county board voted Wednesday to redraw some of the boundaries, creating six new precincts. Madison County Clerk Mark Von Nida said Tuesday that several precincts have grown cumbersome, because of an increase in the number of registered voters.

"(Increased precincts) gives each voter five minutes to vote during the time the polls are open. If there's more than 800 voters, what you see is long lines."

Mark Von Nida
Madison County Clerk

"That's the case in Troy, Pin Oak and St. Jacob," as well as in Collinsville, Von Nida said. "It gets administratively burdensome, and it's burdensome for the voter." Von Nida said the ideal size for a precinct is 800 registered voters. "That gives each voter five minutes to vote during the time the polls are open," he said. "If there's more than 800 voters, what you see is long lines." Two precincts in Collinsville were well over that ideal, Von Nida said. A third precinct is being carved out from those, but each of the three will still have around 1,000 voters, he said. Von Nida prepared a chart showing that in two Collinsville precincts the number of registered voters was double the ideal. The 10th precinct had 1,684 voters, and the 13th had 1,039. A new precinct 21 was created, taking 590 voters from the 10th, and 146 from the 13th. The new precinct will have 736 registered voters.

A similar split of Jarvis precincts 3 and 4 created a new Jarvis 6 precinct with 922 registered voters, and taking from Jarvis precincts 2 and 5 to make Jarvis 7, also with 922 registered voters. The Marine, Pin Oak and St. Jacob precincts were each divided into two comparable precincts each.

Area woman struck, killed by car on I-255

A 40-year-old Glen Carbon woman who was apparently running in the middle of Interstate 255 early Friday morning died when a car hit her.

Gale A. Magac, who police said last lived in the first block of East 30 Mobile Home Park in Glen Carbon, was hit at 3:50 a.m. by a 1995 Chevrolet Camaro that was going 60 miles per hour.

"She was (walking) west across the interstate when she was struck," Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke said. Burke said Magac was probably killed on impact, adding that police are investigating what she was doing on the road since they did not find any abandoned vehicles near the scene.

Brenda L. Kurtz, 35, of the 2300 block of Holiday Lane in Maryville, was the driver of the Camaro. Police said she was not injured and received no traffic citations. Kurtz was headed north on I-255 and was between the Collinsville Road and Interstate 270 exits when she hit Magac, Burke said.

Ruebhausen defends GC DUI policies

ing a DUI arrest when paperwork involved could take the officer off the street for as long as four hours. Combined with the fact that many DUI cases are disposed of in the judicial process, he said, they often become frustrated with the system.

Ruebhausen said after he made the statements, the media portrayed him as being soft on DUI offenders, which he said isn't true. Ruebhausen also said that if the state legislature would clean up its act on DUIs, the department could better serve the community.

"The Legislature could make the process a whole lot easier, enabling us to keep more officers on the streets and enabling us to concentrate more on neighborhood crime, school violence and drug abuse," Ruebhausen said.

Brad Fralick, executive director of the Illinois chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, sympathized with Ruebhausen.

"I understand his frustration. The fact that judges will often throw out DUIs or won't be given serious consideration is a constant complaint," Fralick said. Madison County State's Attorney William Haine was on vacation and could not be reached for comment, but has ordered his office to toughen its stance on DUI prosecutions.

The Granite City Police Department, which Ruebhausen said would now tackle the problem more aggressively, has 57 officers. According to accounts, Granite City officers issued 13 DUI citations from Jan. 1 to May 31 and, at times, let offenders receive a ride home from a responsible party instead of issuing them a citation.

Darr firing reversed by county judge ruling the county did not give Darr a proper hearing before firing him Sept. 21, 1994.

The county recently filed a court motion to vacate or modify Callis' ruling, but no date has been set for a hearing, Gilbert said Wednesday.

He admitted that the ruling leaves many questions to be answered, particularly if no settlement can be reached. Among them would be the effect on the current emergency services operation, headed by Jack Quigley.

In her ruling, Callis reversed Darr's termination and remanded the employment question back to the full Madison County Board with instructions to grant Darr another hearing. This time, Callis said, Darr should be fully apprised of the evidence against him and be allowed the opportunity to cross-examine witnesses.

Darr claims he did not get that chance during his hearing before the County Board's Executive Committee Sept. 20, 1994.

That panel voted 9-5 to recommend termination to the County Board, which approved the recommendation 21-5 the next day.

Darr, 58, of Godfrey, was indicted by a Madison County grand jury for driving under the influence of alcohol after a traffic accident May 31, 1994. He was driving a 1985 Dodge Ram pickup truck — his county-owned vehicle — when he lost control on Homer Adams Parkway in Alton. The truck left the road, hit a utility pole and went down an embankment.

Two witnesses said Darr appeared to be asleep while driving, and two others said he smelled of alcohol or that they were told he'd been drinking, according to court filings.

Authorities said his blood-alcohol level was 0.227 percent — nearly three times today's legal limit. A Madison County grand jury indicted Darr Aug. 25, 1994, and former Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagmann suspended him without pay the next day. The suspension lasted through the firing a month later.

Darr filed suit against the county a month after his firing. He eventually pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor DUI charge and was placed on 18 months' court supervision.

He and his attorney did not dispute the allegations regarding the traffic accident but took exception with the way his firing was handled.

Darr said he believes the record before the County Board was incomplete and did not contain enough evidence to warrant discharge.

He also contends the medical records used in the deliberations were obtained by the board illegally and improperly, which would have warranted their suppression as evidence.

He contends his discharge was illegal discrimination because it was based on a handicap — namely, alcoholism.

Darr argues he was suspended improperly in the absence of a meaningful hearing; improperly denied a leave of absence; and treated differently from other county employees who have been charged criminally but not yet convicted.

In the county's latest motion, Gilbert disputes most of those contentions, saying that Darr had ample time to become familiar with all documentation considered by the board in Darr's suspension. He also said Darr waived any right to object to procedural aspects of the Executive Committee meeting by not making the requisite objection at the time of the meeting.

team. The council dropped the matter from the agenda after hearing of the press conference.

In March, Saugert submitted a plan to the Fairview Heights City Council to build a ballpark northeast of St. Clair Square mall across Interstate 64. However, the proposal cooled as the council became increasingly divided over the financing and economic impact of the stadium.

Fairview Heights Mayor Gail Mitchell said he was surprised to learn of the news when Saugert phoned him Tuesday morning.

"I can certainly understand why he made the decision," Mitchell said. "I still would have liked to make it work in the city."

Mitchell said the stadium would still have a positive economic impact, as it would draw people into Fairview Heights to shop. "It will still benefit our city," he said.

First Ward Alderman Dennis Baricovic said he is disappointed with the decision.

"It could have helped us with development. It was a good thing," he said.

Should all the financial agreements be ironed out between the Collinsville, Madison County and the franchise, it would mean the return of minor league baseball to the metro area for the first time in more than 50 years.

"There is a lot of work to do. From the County Board's standpoint I want to make it clear that we haven't made any iron cut commitments at this point," said Madison County Administrator Jim Mondak, who attended the press conference.

"We are very interested in and working very hard and very quickly with the city and with the franchise to bring this to a conclusion."

Council may rezone Edwardsville Road

the corporate limits of Madison and Granite City to 14th Street and include property on the northwest part of Sheridan Avenue and on the southwest part of Rhodes Street.

About 10 years ago, the city orchestrated a long-range plan for the Tri-City Park area so that it would become an industrial site. The advent of Gateway International Raceway changed those plans. Consequently, Madison rezoned a section of Edwardsville Road from residential to commercial to coincide with its newly zoned district.

A majority of aldermen from Granite City now say that if a commercial corridor is created along the road, the area may attract development.

But Fifth Ward Alderman Eddie Asadorian said he does not see developers flocking to the area.

"There is no urgent need for this rezoning," Asadorian said. "I would rather wait until we have an interested developer."

Report: Cocaine overdose killed Edwardsville man

By Kim Wright

Staff writer

A toxicology report released Friday revealed a man who died on the way to the hospital after struggling with police had cocaine in his system.

On May 15, Brian Domescik, 32, of the block of 7000 Goshen Drive in Edwardsville, died of a cocaine overdose on the way to DePaul Health Center after he was picked up from a domestic violence scene.

Domescik had a seizure on the way to the hospital and paramedics were unable to revive him.

Bridgeton police responded to a domestic violence call during the early morning of May 15 at the Denny's called police after witnessing an assault under way.

Restaurant, 3641 Pennridge Drive. Denny's employees

Godfrey pooch fishes out wallet, finds $1,700 in cash

By Dennis Grubaugh
Staff writer

A Godfrey pooch may well be one lucky dog, but its masters will have to wait at least a year to see if that luck holds out.

MADISON COUNTY
Marjorie L. Kreider, 71, of the 5300 block of River Aire Drive, staked a claim Tuesday to $1,694 contained in a well-worn black leather billfold that her dog fished out of a gutter during a walk near the family home April 18.

The wallet now is in the hands of the Madison County Sheriff's Department, where it will stay until either an owner claims it or a deadline passes for Kreider to claim the cash. She filed her claim in Madison County Circuit Court.

Kreider's court filing said she was walking with the unnamed dog about 2 p.m.

This is the second found wallet with a large amount of cash inside of it in the Riverbend area within a week. Last week, a 24-year-old Granite City woman found $1,800 in cash in the parking lot of the Edwardsville Target store.

April 18 when it paused for a moment near a gutter and came up with the wallet in its mouth.

She turned the wallet in to the Godfrey sub-post of the sheriff's department the next day.

A man who identified himself as Kreider's husband, Cletis, said the couple did not want to talk about the find and regretted all the attention they were getting from reporters Tuesday.

"All we are honest people trying to do the right thing by turning this in. We just followed the advice of police (by filing the claim)."

The credit-card style wallet contained a paper with a faint name and number in pencil and a piece of paper from the Midwest Tool and Supply Co., but apparently no other identification.

The cash could revert to Kreider a year from now. The court clerk must publish a legal notice for three successive weeks in the newspaper, and the property owner has a year to come forward.

Kreider is the second person in a week to record a remarkable find.

SIUE fraternity, Edwardsville are at odds over building code

Counselor: We're disappointed with delay tactics

By Barbara M. Cope
Staff writer

As the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity looks to move from one historic building to another, construction to meet building codes has the city of Edwardsville and fraternity chapter counselor Bill Shedd on opposite sides of the fence.

MADISON COUNTY Several factors have to be met for the fraternity to move to its new home. Shedd said the process has been held up by city government that continues to surprise him with new requirements that must be met in the upgrade of the Lincoln School property.

"We're disappointed in whatever purpose there is in a delay tactic," Shedd said. "We haven't had much success there. I can tell you that anyone within the city's administrative staff has not been in the least bit helpful with resolving those problems. Every time we overcome one obstacle, then they'd pull out another."

Edwardsville Mayor Gary Niebur doesn't quite see it that way. "Any use of that building or any other structure must by state code meet the requirements of all building codes and fire codes," Niebur said. "We have and will continue to work with them but we also have an obligation and responsibility to see those codes enforced and implemented for the safety of future residents."

The fraternity received zoning approval in December but has yet to reach the stage where it can count on any firm plans to come up with a time frame for its move.

Part of the problem has been some unexpected architectural work to meet life safety requirements. Shedd cited the necessity of a sprinkler system as an example of the nature of those problems. City codes require dormitories, which is what the project is most closely defined as, to have sprinkler systems.

"If we were building apartments, we wouldn't have to worry about it," Shedd said. "But we want to have the open fraternity experience in our house, so we have had to find an economical way to install an extensive sprinkler system."

The fraternity must move before it will release its current home — the Stephenson House — and Niebur said the city has made generous offers to the fraternity to buy the property.

The holdup is simply a construction matter. State law requires the building codes on the Lincoln School must be met before anyone lives there. "The plans can only be approved if they are detailed, accurate and cover all state codes," Niebur said. "Plans will not be approved until the appropriate changes are made by their architect and the various code officials have signed off to give their approval to issue a building permit."

Shedd said he was happy to hear that Niebur had called for the city to try to expedite matters, but he is still waiting for results.

"We have our building proposal and design drawings that have been reviewed once and resubmitted based on the discussions we've had," Shedd said. "That was about six weeks ago and we haven't heard anything back."

Shedd and the fraternity are one step closer now. The letter with the results of their latest submission of plans was mailed Monday, Niebur said.

After all of the problems the fraternity has had in the building process, Shedd said he felt the city had changed its mind about the purchase of the Stephenson House.

Collinsville set for challenge

City known for basketball is willing to show new side

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

Collinsville is willing to prove its more than just a basketball city.

BASEBALL So far, they've convinced the owners of the Gateway Grizzlies, a minor league team that will begin play in the Class A independent Frontier League in June 2000.

Gateway Baseball L.L.C., the Grizzlies' parent company, announced on Tuesday that it will build a $5.2 million stadium on 20 acres near Eastport Plaza in Collinsville. The location is on the northeast corner of the intersection of interstates 255 and 55/70.

Collinsville High has a national reputation as the country's second-winningest high school basketball program. But Collinsville Mayor Stan Schaefer, whose association with Grizzlies managing partner Rich Sauget played a big role in the team's decision, was quick to point out Collinsville's baseball legacy.

"We've won two state titles (1941 and 1980) — Russ Keene, Joe Spurgeon and those guys," Schaefer said. "We've had major leaguers like (Walter) 'Hot' Evers, (Ken)

"The entire area — Edwardsville, Belleville — support baseball... They have sold 500 season tickets already and I would assume they are not from Collinsville."

"That could change with tickets sold in the near future.

The Grizzlies were interested in developing a site in Fairview Heights before Tuesday's announcement.

Once the financial arrangements between the city, Madison County and the franchise are ironed out, the Grizzlies ownership group hopes to begin construction in July. The owners hope the project will be completed in time for the start of the 2000 season in June.

The Grizzlies will play an 84-game schedule in the Frontier League, meaning 42 home dates.

Tigers' play at state event was disappointing

Edwardsville was hammered 11-1 in quarterfinal game

By Greg Shashack
Staff writer

A Thursday night lightning strike knocked out the scoreboard at Elfstrom

PREP BASEBALL Stadium in Geneva, rendering it inoperable for Friday morning's IHSA Class AA state tournament opener.

That gift from the heavens saved the Edwardsville Tigers from having to see the ugly numbers in lights. Edwardsville committed six errors while New Trier pounded out 12 hits en route to an 11-1 six-inning victory in the quarterfinals of the IHSA Class AA state tournament.

The Tigers finished 33-7, posting the fourth-winningest season in school history.

New Trier took command immediately, getting to Tigers ace Nick Seibert for two runs in the first inning. That set up Edwardsville's second-inning implosion that left the Tigers sifting through the rubble of an 8-0 deficit and a baffling inability to make plays it routinely executed in its previous 39 games.

"When you get to this level of play, you can't get down by that many runs," said Seibert, who allowed 10 hits and eight earned runs in 4 1/3 innings. "When you go down 8-0, you're thinking, 'Let's go, let's get it started.' We just never could get it started."

It was a sobering performance for a tradition-rich program that had not lost a quarterfinal game at state since 1953 and had celebrated state titles in 1990 and '98 along with a runner-up showing in 1991. Edwardsville, which earlier this season set the state's second-longest win streak behind its own 64-game streak of 1990-91, was making its 10th state appearance and had advanced to the semifinals in each of its last six appearances.

"I'm proud of the way we've played this season," Edwardsville coach Tim Funkhouser said. "I probably said that about 10 times to our team down there after the game. I'm very proud of our season and I never want this to take anything away from it. But it's hard to take right now."

Edwardsville's potent offense, which had scored nine or more runs in its four postseason games, was silenced by New Trier junior Matt Lottich (12-1), who yielded just two hits and an unearned run.

And the Tigers defense suffered a complete and total collapse.

Edwardsville's title defense fails

Ten-run rule applied to EHS for first time this decade

By Greg Shashack
Staff writer

The magic that brought the Edwardsville Tigers a

PREP BASEBALL state high school baseball championship in 1998

never materialized Friday morning at Elfstrom Stadium in suburban Chicago.

Edwardsville, making its 10th state tournament appearance, saw its season end with an 11-1 six-inning loss to New Trier in the IHSA Class AA state quarterfinals.

The outcome was stunningly dismal for the Tigers, who came in with a 33-6 record and had become the first Class AA school to repeat as champion. Edwardsville mustered just two hits on offense and was inept in the field, committing a season-high six errors while falling victim to the 10-run rule for the first time this decade.

"We feel fortunate that we were able to get this far," first-year Edwardsville coach Tim Funkhouser said. "We wish we would have played better, and that's one thing that's disheartening — that we didn't really show the type of ballclub we were today."

One year after putting on a baseball clinic and outscoring the opposition 287 en route to the state title, Edwardsville did little

St. Louis region rivalry takes shape

Frontier League gets an I-70 Series with Grizzlies, Rascals

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

The I-70 Series is just a year away from being an annual event... in the Frontier League.

BASEBALL The independent Class A baseball league will have two teams in the St. Louis region next year when the Gateway Grizzlies join the River City Rascals as members of the loop.

The Grizzlies, who on Tuesday announced intentions to build a $5.2-million, 3,500-seat stadium in Collinsville, are scheduled to begin play in the Frontier League in June 2000. The team's stadium will be located near the intersection of interstates 255 and 55/70.

The River City Rascals, located a few miles west along I-70 in O'Fallon, Mo., in St. Charles County, began play this season.

Ken Wilson, an investor with the River City Rascals and an advisor to the Gateway Grizzlies, believes the St. Louis region can support the two minor league teams. He expects the franchises to develop a rivalry.

"The rivalries the Gateway Grizzlies will have at this location are great," said Wilson, who is the broadcaster for St. Louis Blues hockey. "It's 45 minutes to Hughes Ballpark in O'Fallon, Mo.; it's an hour and 15 minutes to Lankford Park in Springfield; and it's two hours and 15 minutes to Bossey Field in Evansville, Ind. They are all going to be great, great rivalries in the same division. "I know people in Evansville and Springfield that can't wait until the Gateway Grizzlies start because they want to come down here for baseball games."

When the Grizzlies' home stadium is completed in the spring of 2000, Wilson believes the ballpark and the new professional team will attract fans.

"It's nice if you can have a ballpark that is visible to a freeway," Wilson said. "You would like it to be very easy for fans to drive in, drive out; and this location is marvelous for that. If you live 10 minutes away, it will be easy to get in and get out; if you live a half hour away, it will be easy to get in and get out. The fact that there are a number of hotels, restaurants and recreational opportunities in the same Eastport development just makes this a

East St. Louis duo sparks St. Louis team in physical all-star contest

Cole, Adams lead local team past national all-star squad

By Bill Hester
Correspondent

From the very start, it was clear the Demetrius Johnson Charitable Foundation St. Louis Petroleum Clark & Sportsprint High School All-Star Game between St. Louis area girls and a national team was not going to be a typical all-star game.

Instead of the wide-open affairs that lack defense, this contest was extremely physical as the teams combined to shoot 89 free throws.

Lakeisha Cole, the outstanding guard from East St. Louis High School, was the recipient of an elbow from 6-foot-4 Portia Mitchell in the opening half. That opened up a cut on her hip which was reopened in the second half.

"It hurt," Cole said of the elbow delivered by Mitchell, who is headed to the University of Southern California in the fall. "I knew that we could give them a good match tonight but at first it wasn't really important to win. But as the game went on, it became personal. We wanted to win."

Cole spearheaded a second-half comeback as the St. Louis team won the inaugural girls game 78-75.

Saturday night at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The local team led 21-11 early but the national team scored the St. Louis squad 34-12 the rest of the half. The national team increased its lead to 16 points (55-39) before the St. Louis team, keyed by the play of Cole and her East St. Louis teammate Rita Adams, went on a 26-5 run. Cole's 3-pointer with seven minutes remaining gave the St. Louis team a 62-60 advantage.

St. Louis never relinquished the lead, although the national team had a chance to win in the final seconds.

Norman shines in all-star tilt

Lebanon standout scores 23, wins slam dunk contest

By Bill Hester
Correspondent

Many in the crowd Saturday night at the Demetrius Johnson Charitable Foundation St. Louis Petroleum Clark & Sportsprint High School

BOYS BASKETBALL All-Star Game had heard of

Les Norman.

But very few had seen the multi-talented 6-foot guard from Lebanon High School graduate in action prior to the contest at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, which pitted St. Louis area stars against a national all-star squad.

Norman left an impression, scoring 23 points to lead the St. Louis team to a 66-52 victory against the national stars.

Norman also won the halftime slam dunk contest. "It was nice to win the slam dunk contest," Norman said. "It shows that 6-foot guys can jump. But winning the game was more important. This was a big experience for me. It was another step to big-time basketball."

Norman led the St. Louis area in scoring this past winter, averaging 20.1 points per game. He was an all-state selection for Class A and is headed to Saint Joseph State University this fall.

"Maybe some people didn't think that players from southern Illinois could play at this level," Norman said. "I wanted to come out and show that I could play with the big boys. More than anything, I wanted to go out there and smile."

"It was nice to win the slam dunk contest. It shows that 6-foot guys can jump. But winning the game was more important. This was a big experience for me. It was another step to big-time basketball."

and have some fun. I had a lot of fun."

Norman kept the St. Louis team in the game in the first half, hitting three 3-pointers and scoring 15 points in just about 10 minutes of playing time.

"I had heard a lot about about him but never seen him play," St. Louis University High coach Don Maurer, who was coaching the national team said. "I was looking forward to seeing him play. He put on quite a show. I liked everything about him. He can jump up and shoot it, he can handle it and he is so athletic. He also plays the game very hard. He can't get it out of his head."

"I wish I could have seen him play during the season," said DeMet coach Bob Steiner, who teamed with Floyd Irons to coach the metro stars. "What an athlete he is. He carried us in the first half. But it was more of a team effort in the second half."

The national team had a 42-41 halftime advantage but the metro stars went on a 16-4 run to start the second half. The team of Norman, Gerald Weatherspoon (St. Louis Cardinal Ritter), Nick Benson (Jennings, Mo.), Tim Scheer (New Haven, Mo.) and Sean Blocker (Hazelwood, Mo., Central).

Sandy Fletcher, a guard from Inglewood (Calif.) High School who is headed to USC, kept the national team in the game by scoring eight consecutive points, including a basket with 2:10 to play that gave his team a 90-89 advantage. But Michael Grimes (Hazelwood, Mo., Central) put the metro team ahead for good. Norman added a basket and Weatherspoon a three-point play to put the game away.

"All-star games are always fun to play in," said D.J. Hogue of St. Louis CBC. "You want to go out there and play your best. For us, it was also important to win. A lot of people thought that the national team would crush us. We wanted to show that the St. Louis team was not going to be easy to beat."

The win avenges a one-point loss for the St. Louis team in last year's game, which featured Arizona freshmen Richard Jefferson and Michael Wright and Missouri's Keeyon Dooling on the national team.

"Floyd and I emphasized to the players that they had a lot of responsibility out there to represent the St. Louis area," Steiner said. "St. Louis is not always recognized nationally as having great basketball players. Floyd is a great motivator and he used that to our advantage. The kids bought into it and played well and as a team. That was the only way we could win against such a talented team."

All 11 St. Louis players scored in the game with Norman leading the way with his 23 points. Four other players scored in double figures. Weatherspoon had 16, Grimes 15, Benson 14 and Daniel Hawkins (East St. Louis, Mo.) 11.

Fletcher had 26 and Tommy Smith, who is headed to Arizona State, had 19 to pace the national team.

Post 365

LEGION BASEBALL its first loss of the season

Tuesday with a 5-3 win. Post 365 (3-1) played two runs in the top of the seventh, but could only cut the lead to 5-3.

Charlie Johnson pitched five strong innings for Post 365, scattering seven hits.

Johnson struck out 11 batters, but four costly errors doomed his outing. Belleville led 3-1 going into the bottom of sixth when it scored two big insurance runs, which proved to be the difference in the game.

Dan Munoz pitched the sixth and was victimized for two runs.

Belleville pitcher Andy Johnson went the distance. He scattered three hits in seven innings while striking out six. Only one of the runs Post 365 scored was earned.

Travis Jones and Kevin Sanguolo had RBI hits in the winning effort.

Justin Hefflin had an RBI hit for Post 365. Justin Volkmar picked up the other RBI. Munoz and Wayne Astrauskas had Collinsville's two other hits.

Post 365 wraps up its road trip 8 p.m. tonight with a game against Smithton. The team then hosts Columbia at 7:45 p.m. Friday.

expected to be used for other events, ranging from basketball games to graduations. Construction workers won't be the only ones working feverishly in the coming months. Grizzlies general manager Eric Marglous has a full docket as well.

Marglous, who handles season ticket requests, corporate sponsorships and merchandise sales, also will hire a manager around January, after which the team will conduct a tryout camp and begin signing free agents.

But Tennille Grant missed a shot and Cole scored the insurance basket for St. Louis on a feed from Adams.

"It was a wonderful game to see," said Angel Sadler, the coach at St. Louis St. Elizabeth's Academy who teamed with St. Louis Gateway Tech's Sherman Curtis to coach the locals. "It shows that the St. Louis athletes can compete with the best teams in the country. Our girls can play on the national level. This was a good showcase for them."

"Danielle Lawary (Belleville West) got us started with a couple of baskets to open the second half. Then Keisha hit the three-pointers in a row. From that point on there was no turning back. We knew that we had to come in with our 'A' game to play against this talented team. We did that and it was the defense which took over at the end and won the game for us."

Cole, headed to Trinity Junior College in Athens, Texas, had 24 points to lead all scorers. Adams, who is going to the University of Kentucky, added 14. Diana Hill (Gateway Tech/Central Florida University) had 10 for the St. Louis team.

"This was an awesome experience," said Dion McNeal (Parkway West/University of Missouri-Rolla), who keyed the team defensively in the second half. "It was a competitive game on both sides. We all come from good winning high school teams and we don't like to lose.

"There was some top talent from California on the other team and they were tall. We were down at halftime and we knew we had to do the little things like banging on the boards if we were to get back. Keisha had some awesome shots and then we had to knuckle down defensively. We wanted to win and also have fun doing it."

Melissa Oliver, who is from Glenbard North High School near Chicago, scored 14 points to lead the national team. Oliver is headed to Saint Louis University.

"This was a game I would have rather watched as a fan than coached," Curtis said.

"But it was a good promotional game for girls basketball. Our girls had to represent the area and they did it well. It sets the tradition for the younger kids in the area. They look up to these girls."

New Trier didn't back down to EHS

Edwardsville erased its aura with six-error performance

By Greg Shashack
Staff writer

New Trier baseball coach Mike Napoleon was among the witnesses to Edwardsville's devastating state tournament run in 1998.

PREP BASEBALL
1998, capped a 40-0 season for the Tigers.

When the Tigers returned to the IHSA Class AA state tournament in 1999, Napoleon's Trevians were ready. New Trier posted an 11-1 victory in six innings last Friday in the state quarterfinal round.

"This isn't the same Edwardsville team," Napoleon said. "One thing our kids didn't do, we didn't back down.... They made a lot of mistakes and we just took advantage of all their miscues."

Six errors and a couple other misplays on defense, coupled with a two-hit attack on offense, proved a fatal combination for the Tigers. It wasn't what Napoleon expected from the defending state champion.

"Edwardsville, they have an aura about themselves," Napoleon said.

For the Tigers seniors, it was a stunning departure from a brilliant run of postseason success. It's a group that won a American Legion junior division state title in 1997, a high school state title and the Legion senior division national championship in 1998.

"It's been a while since we felt like this," Edwardsville's Matt Turner said. "But these things

"This isn't the same Edwardsville team. One thing our kids didn't do, we didn't back down.... They made a lot of mistakes and we just took advantage of all their miscues."

happen, and it's just one baseball game. This doesn't mean we're bad or anything. We just weren't very good today."

Edwardsville returned to the state tournament despite graduation losses and the retirement of coach Tom Dile, who was replaced by EHS alum and former Triad coach Tim Funkhouser.

The Tigers opened this season with nine more wins to stretch its winning streak into the second-longest in state history (behind Edwardsville's 64 wins from 1990 to 91). But Funkhouser never planned on perfection. Edwardsville lost twice to Belleville East in the Southwestern Conference race but drubbed the Lancers 12-1 in the sectional championship game to earn the state berth.

He addressed the expectations with his team before the season started. "I wasn't there last year and I'm not going to pretend like I was there,"

Edwardsville pitcher Nick Seibert suffered just his second loss in 15 decisions this spring when New Trier beat the Tigers 11-1 in the IHSA state quarterfinal round.

Funkhouser said. "I never want to take their memories

"Even though we didn't play like an Edwardsville team today, we have a great tradition and the kids take pride in it."

away from last year's team or season. But this was a new year and we have new players and we have a lot to accomplish.

"And it's a credit to the players even though I played here in high school, to take on a new coach that was outside the program and be willing to listen and learn."

"And even though we didn't play like an Edwardsville team today, we have a great tradition and the kids take pride in it. And they should be proud of their season."

Tigers struggle in state quarterfinal

"I didn't really know how to react to it because I've never had anything like senior happen," said Seibert, who finished at 13-2. "But you can't get mad about it. That won't do any good. You've just got to hope they make the next play.... You need to be a little lucky to win the state tournament. We weren't very lucky this year."

Seibert was relieved temporarily in the second inning, when Chris Johnson came in to get the final two outs before Seibert went back to the mound in the third inning.

New Trier adding single runs against Seibert in the fourth and the fifth and put a premature halt to the game with a run against junior Jake Schuette in the sixth.

"Our team's a bunch of competitors and we don't like to back down from anyone," Lottich said. "We knew Edwardsville, last year 40-0, was a good club but we knew we could play. We swung the bats well, pitched a good ballgame and played well defensively. I liked the results."

Edwardsville's lone hit came off the bat of Matt Turner, who singled in the second and fourth innings.

The Tigers scored their run in the third when an error set up Andrew Honegger's RBI fielder's choice that cut New Trier's lead to 8-1.

Title defense falls short; Trevians eliminate Tigers right Friday. The Tigers fell behind 8-0 after two innings, including a second-inning nightmare that saw the Trevians score six runs with the aid of three Edwardsville errors.

"I think this is the first game I've ever seen Edwardsville play like that," said Edwardsville senior Matt Turner, who went 2 for 3 to account for both of the Tigers' hits. "Usually, we're on the other side, hitting the ball hard, watching the other team make mistakes. But it kind of snatched on me. Once one bad thing happened, it wouldn't stop."

after playing their finest game of the season in a 12-1 sectional victory Monday against Belleville East, the Tigers played their poorest game of the season Friday on Illinois high school baseball's biggest stage.

"We talked to our guys and told them we're proud of what we've accomplished this year and not to let this game take away anything from it," Funkhouser said.

"We didn't play well at all, as everybody saw, and (New Trier) was the better team today," he said. "But what we were proud of is the way we handled ourselves as individuals. I was very proud of our character out there, even though we didn't play the game particularly well today."

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP SERIES

Dale Jarrett didn't feel like making the Kmart 400 a competitive event, so he and crew chief Todd Parrott came up with a car that nobody could touch.

Helping their domination was the fact that no caution flags flew at a NASCAR Winston Cup event for the first time in more than two years. When Jarrett took the lead after the first round of pit stops on lap 53, the race was literally over.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL

Dale Earnhardt Jr. didn't have time to sulk about finishing second to his father in Friday's first round of the International Race of Champions. Instead, he went to South Boston, Va., and won his second straight Busch Grand National Series event. Earnhardt Jr. passed Jeff Green with 70 laps to go in a race that featured 14 cautions for 59 laps.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES

Dennis Setzer held off Jay Sauter to win Friday's race in Fort Worth, Texas. It was his first win of the season and the second of his career. Setzer was pulling away before two late restarts tested his mettle.

THE WINSTON CUP SERIES

Coming up: Pocono 500
Where: Pocono Raceway, Long Pond, Pa. (2.5-mile track), 200 laps/500 miles
When: Sunday, June 20
Defending champion: Jeremy Mayfield
Event qualifying record: Jeff Gordon, Chevrolet, 169.725 mph, June 14,

1996

Race record: Alan Kulwicki, Ford, 144.023 mph, June 14, 1992
Notable: Last year's victory was the first (and only thus far) of Mayfield's career. ... Darrell Waltrip and Bill Elliott have each won four times at Pocono. ... Ken Schrader is a five-time pole winner.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCKS

Coming up: Grainger 225
Where: Portland (Ore.) International Raceway (1.967-mile track)
When: Friday, June 18 (televised June 19)
Defending champion: First event
Track qualifying record: None
Race record: None

Notable: This is the Truck Series' first stop at a road course this season.

... The SuperTrucks will also hit the road the following week at Watkins Glen, N.Y. ... A road race will also be held at Heartland Park (Topeka, Kan.) on Aug. 28.

PROFILE

Jeff Gordon

By Monte Dutton
 NASCAR This Week

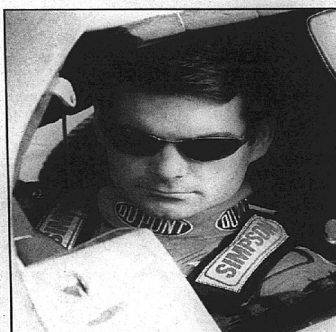

Jeff Gordon may yet become the second driver to capture three championships in a row, but he will have to make quite a comeback. No one who follows NASCAR is counting Gordon out, however. No one in the sport's history has done so much at so young an age. Since winning rookie-of-the-year honors in 1993, Gordon has won three championships (1995, '97, '98), two Daytona 500s (1997, '99) and two Brickyard 400s (1995, '98). He has also won the last four Southern 500s at Darlington.

AGE: 27
HOMETOWN: Born in Vallejo, Calif., raised in Pittsboro, Ind., lives in Mooresville, N.C.
WIFE: Brooke
CHILDREN: None
CAR: No. 24 DuPont Chevrolet Monte Carlo, owned by Rick Hendrick

RECORD: 204 starts, 45 wins, 27 poles, 108 top-five finishes, 132 top-10s, nearly $30 million in career earnings
FIRSTS: Start (Nov. 15, 1992, at Atlanta), pole (Oct. 6, 1993, at Charlotte), win (May 9, 1994, at Charlotte)
HOW WOULD YOU DESCRIBE THE LEVEL OF COMPETITION SO FAR THIS SEASON? "It's really close out here now, very competitive. It's good to see. It's exciting racing right now, a lot of different names going to victory lane. It's just good for the sport to see that. I think with the spoiler and air dam rules we have right now, it's contributing to good racing. I would say it's pretty good parity, give and take. Some places the Pontiac is good, some places the Chevies are strong, and some places the Fords are strong. It's a good mixture everywhere we go."

HAS YOUR LUCK RUN OUT THIS YEAR? "I was thinking about how fortunate we were last year, when we won 13 races, but especially this year after some of the trouble we've had. We've won three big races, and we're happy about that. We've run well enough to win more races, but when you have trouble like we have, you count your blessings and you're pretty thankful for what you did with a year like we had last year. The plan is to just get momentum, get some things building and get it going and put out the effort like we did at Dover and see how the results turn out. That's what we've been doing all year long. The results haven't always been there. We just hope we can get some consistency with those results."

WHY HAVE YOU HAD PROBLEMS WITH YOUR CONSISTENCY THIS YEAR? "We've had a lot of success the past few years. When you have that time of success, you want to live up to those expectations. There's a lot of pressure on you to live up to those expectations. We came out of the box at Daytona with an awesome win in the 500. I thought we were going to start off where we left off. That quickly turned around. We've been having crazy things. We had a blown motor, we've had out tires, we've had this power steering pump seal go out, things that rarely happened to us the past few years that are happening to us this year. That's just the way racing goes. When you have the type of year like we had last year, when it seemed like we couldn't do anything wrong, you know that those times are going to come back. They certainly have. The next thing about it is that the effort of the race team hasn't stopped. It's stronger than it's ever been. We're just waiting for things to come around our way a little more."

John Clark/NASCAR This Week
 Jeff Gordon has won three championships in the last four years.

Dear NASCAR This Week:
 What is with IROC races? I love them, but they don't televise the race, and I can't find any reference to it except for bits and pieces. If they play it, they must sneak it in somewhere without any listing.

Philip Halstead Sr.
 Fruitland Park, Fla.

IROC races are televised via tape-delay. In the past, ABC had all the rights and paired the IROC races with live motorsports programming, sometimes months later. However, this year IROC is spread across several networks, and at least two of the four events are scheduled for next-day coverage. What can we say? "Check local listings."

Who's Hot... Who's Not

- HOT: Dale Jarrett picked up his second win of the season in a blowout.
- NOT: Bill Elliott was racing when he busted oil line killed his chances. He finished 41st.

Trackside Trivia

- How many second-place finishes did Sterling Marlin have before he won his first Winston Cup race?
- Name the Indiana car builder for whom Jeff Gordon, Tony Stewart and Kenny Irwin all drove during their USAC days.

1. Nine; 2. Bob East.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Rusty Wallace vs. NASCAR

When Bill Elliott busted an oil line on lap 168, Wallace felt there should have been a caution. He said that NASCAR didn't throw a yellow flag so they could have a caution-free race and a race speed record to talk about.

NASCAR This Week's Josh Stewart gives his opinion: "While NASCAR has certainly been known to look out for its own interests, Wallace also has been known for his share of sour grapes in the past, and Sunday was probably no exception. Jarrett would have won no matter how many flags NASCAR threw."

Awards handed out at Salvation Army Home League meeting

The Home League ladies of the Salvation Army met in the social hall at The Granite City Salvation Army headquarters Tuesday morning and celebrated a quarterly birthday party for all those having birthdays in April, May or June.

Capt. Harriet Colp conducted the meeting. Those who are sick or in the hospital were remembered in prayer. Awards were given in the form of pins.

Awards went to Maxine Rutter for attending Home League meetings for 22 years without missing more than four meetings a year.

Elizabeth Griffin received a pin for attending 17 years. Darlene Roberson received a nine-year pin, and Myrtle Howell and Marge Szcinski received two-year pins.

After the awards were presented, the women played Geography Bingo and a musical game where presents were given out when the music stopped.

The potluck meal was enjoyed by Rose Griffith, Christine DeLoach, Betty Mahurin, Wilma Arnold, Myrtle Foster, Geraldine Clay, Hazel Meisenheimer, Margie Szcinski, Vickie Alegre, Marie

Maxine Green

Verbryck.

The National Association of Southern Baptist Secretaries meets every two years for a conference and seminar, which provides opportunities to learn what's new in technology, organizational skills, people skills and meet others in their field and exchange ideas.

Lora Fuller (Suburban Baptist secretary), Kathy Rudolph (Grace Baptist secretary) and Jolene Terrell (MCBA secretary) joined six others from Illinois and 800 from all 50 states in Glorieta, N.M., the week of April 27 through May 1 for several days of Christian fellowship, inspiration, rejuvenation and growth.

John and Susan Pennfield, a praise team from Nashville, Tenn., led the music, and John directed the all-seminars choir. The Bible study leader was Ed Rowell and Chonda Pierce, a Christian comedian, related stories about growing up as preachers kids.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Strack of Granite City are announcing the birth of their daughter, Isabelle Elise, on June 5 at Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis.

Mrs. Strack is the former

Christina Venarsky.

The new arrival, who weighed 8 pounds, 4 ounces, is the granddaughter of Jim and Mickey Strack of Granite City and Charles and Evelyn Venarsky of Maryville. Great-grandparents are Clarence and Lois Hoy of Granite City and Ben and Mary Strack of St. Louis and Helen Venarsky of Mascoutah.

The Granite City Pom-Pom Squad of 1998-1999 and the Pom Parents Association would like to say a big thank you to a wonderful friend and coach, Mrs. Vanessa Mattern.

It was a terrific year, full of fun, hard work, awards, tears and memories. Thanks, Vanessa, you are the "wind beneath our wings." From Julie S., Amy, Kristin, Meagan, Alyssa, Tiffany, Jennifer, Lindsay, Lydia, Megan, Rachelle, Ashley, Megan, Kim, Sara, Bonnie, Stephanie S., Candice, Tisha, Susie, Julie and Stephanie A.

On June 12, Grace Baptist Church's singles department hosted a singles barbecue at the Madison County Baptist Center.

Games and activities started in the early afternoon. Grace Baptist Church provided the meat and drinks and others, with covered dishes, provided the meal. The surprise event was a big scavenger hunt.

The wrap-up of the afternoon was a devotional given by Mary Stapleton. There were 15 in attendance from Maryville First Baptist Church and Pontoon and Grace Baptist churches in Granite City.

More future events are being planned.

A fifth birthday was celebrated at the meeting of the Saturn Car Club in May. Cake and ice cream were served and gifts were exchanged.

Charlie Rinkus had Coca-Cola of St. Louis donate a cooler as a gift, and he filled it with soda. Don Counts won it and donated the soda to Loaves and Fishes. Kitchen products were collected in the meeting and donated to the Good Samaritan House of Granite City.

Saturn's Bicycle Ride for Charity was held on June 6 from Saturn of St. Charles County. It was a very hot day, but the club did their thing and barbecued as planned. Hard-working members participating were Charlie Rinkus, Don Counts, Linda Bernabe, Ken and Marion Lambrecht, Dick Leutzing and Linda Gordon. The money raised was donated to Our Little Haven.

The ladies' missions group of Second Baptist Church is sponsoring a shower during the month of July for New Beginnings Crisis Pregnancy Center in Granite City.

Anyone wishing to help with this project can call the church at 877-482 for more information.

Mike Watkins has been appointed by the North American Mission Board to serve as a Mission Service Corps volunteer in the Madison County Baptist Association.

He is a member of Jesus' Place Baptist Church and working in the Outreach Ministry. He also serves as the association's Director of Discipleship Training.

Maxine Green covers the social scene for the Granite City Press-Record. Send items for this column to Maxine at 931-6256.

BAC speech contest held

And the winners are... That's what six Belleville Area College students heard at the conclusion of the 1999 BAC Student Speech Contest recently held at the college's Belleville Campus.

More than 40 students entered the contest, which was open to students at all three BAC campuses.

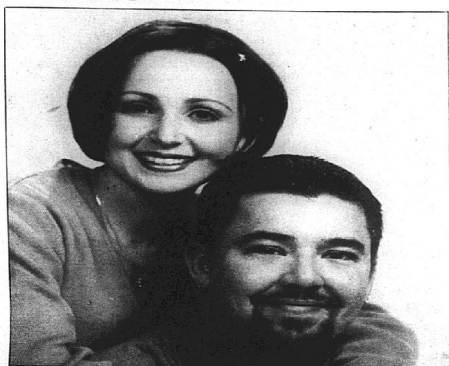

"The speech faculty were extremely pleased with the turnout for the competition. All of the students did a wonderful job. Our judges had a difficult task," said Speech Faculty Member Barb Korenbrock.

Walking away with top honors were Carrie Grosskeut of Fairview Heights in the informative division and Nicki Jung of O'Fallon in the persuasive division. Each earned a $200 prize and a trophy for their effort. Grosskeut's speech addressed the end of the world, while Jung's focused on breast cancer.

Second place honors went to Mark Lull of Granite City for his speech on the safety training of flight attendants and to Jean Cheryl of Scott Air Force Base for his speech on exercise. Lull and Cheryl received $150 prizes and trophies.

Gordon Anderson of Belleville and Susan Haper of Alton earned third place.

Haack is a 1995 graduate of Butler University in Indianapolis. He is an actuary for Conesco, Inc. They are planning a June wedding.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes an automobile accident will occur in which there is minimal damage to the Plaintiff's vehicle. In some of these cases, the Plaintiff driver will claim that he sustained a personal injury, and he will seek compensation from the Defendant's insurance company. The question that arises in these cases is whether or not a soft tissue personal injury can arise when there is minimal property damage.

It is important to understand that there are four questions to be answered in any personal injury auto accident case. First, it must be determined who was at fault. Secondly, was the Plaintiff injured and how badly? Thirdly, did the Defendant driver have insurance at the time of the accident? And fourthly, what was the amount of property damage to the Plaintiff's car?

In one recent case, a woman (Plaintiff) was stopped at a stop sign when she was rear-ended by a drunk driver (Defendant). In fact, the Defendant was so intoxicated that he then backed into the car behind him. After the accident, he drove away and fled the accident scene. The police arrested him the next day and charged him with leaving the scene of an accident.

In this case, there was only two hundred dollars of damage to the Plaintiff's car. However, the Plaintiff maintained that she sustained neck and back injuries, and she immediately sought treatment at the emergency room. Following this visit to the emergency room, she then treated with a chiropractor and ultimately consulted with an orthopedic surgeon. The diagnosis with regard to her injury was cervical strain, and she was still having headaches and back problems several months after the accident.

Can a person in fact be injured when there is minimal damage? Certainly there is medical literature to support the possibility of injury with relatively minor impacts. Studies have been conducted by orthopedic surgeons and neurosurgeons that demonstrate the possibility of whiplash injury even where minimal property damage is involved.

If the Plaintiff in a minor impact case sustains a personal injury, he or she should certainly pursue a claim. However, even though medical literature supports the possibility of injuries in these cases, the injured Plaintiff will still have to demonstrate to the insurance company or the jury that in fact he or she was injured.

Vehicle auction set for June 26 in Springfield

More than 225 vehicles will be auctioned off by the State of Illinois at its surplus vehicle sale Saturday, June 26, according to Central Management Services (CMS) Director Michael S. Schwartz. "The state will auction off various late model police and agency vehicles," stated Schwartz. "This is a good opportunity for members of the public to obtain reasonably priced, pre-owned vehicles, and at the same time, it provides money for the state's general revenue fund."

The sale will be held at the state's surplus property warehouse, at 1923 South 11th Street in Springfield, between Ash and Laurel streets.

The vehicles will be available for inspection on Thursday, June 24, and Friday, June 25, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and up to the time of the sale on Saturday.

To participate in auction, bidders must register on the day of the sale. Registration begins at 6:30 a.m., and the sale begins at 8 a.m. Bidders may pay for purchases with cash, certified check, money order or travelers checks in increments of $100 or less. Business or personal checks are also accepted, but all checks must be supported by a letter of credit from a financial institution that includes the maximum amount of credit approved through a specific date.

These letters should also state that they cover the purchase price of State of Illinois property only. All letters must be approved prior to the sale. Two types of identification must also be provided.

All vehicles will be sold "as is" to the highest bidders. Buyers must take possession of all purchased items immediately upon conclusion of the auction. No warranties or guarantees are expressed or implied and all sales are final.

All buyers must adhere to the Illinois Mandatory Insurance Law. All vehicles operated in Illinois are required to carry minimum liability insurance.

Glen Carbon plans new road to Cottonwood

By Paul Mackie
Staff writer

Glen Carbon officials are planning a road off Illinois 159 that could improve access in the Cottonwood Mall shopping area.

Glen Carbon trustees have had discussions with the Illinois Department of Transportation regarding construction of a short connector east from where Kettle River Drive ends at 159.

The nearly 1,000-foot link likely will go between Hawthorne Animal Hospital and Cafe Barista into the large parking lot that serves the Skate Corral, Kettle River Racquet Club, the Cotton Bowl and other businesses.

"It should definitely help that area for better development in the future," Glen Carbon Mayor Ron Foster said.

The plan evolved from the rerouting project for 159, Public Works Director Tom Sedlacek said.

A new leg of Illinois 159 will split from Troy Road at the Kettle River Drive intersection northbound into Edwardsville. Meanwhile, the three-lane Illinois 159 will increase to five lanes southbound from the Kettle River Drive intersection.

Tom Slekman, IDOT's engineer of local roads and streets, said he has not seen official plans for what may be called Kettle River Drive East. However, he informally has discussed the connector with David Brammeier, chairman of the village's Building and Development Committee.

"We have full intentions of punching that road through for improved transportation into the shopping area," Brammeier said.

The road is necessary, he said, because IDOT plans to restrict turning access just south of Kettle River Drive at Whistle Stop Drive.

Motorists exiting Blockbuster Video onto Illinois 159 will have to turn right.

Also, southbound Illinois 159 motorists will not be allowed to turn left onto Whistle Stop Drive.

Part of IDOT's plan includes a slight turn at the Kettle River Drive intersection, which Brammeier said will provide a turning lane for motorists headed southbound on 159 who want to enter the Cottonwood shopping area.

"They would make a left turn at that entrance rather than at Whistle Stop Drive," Brammeier said. "And the left turn at the Cotton Bowl (further north on Illinois 159) has been a disaster."

He said cost of the road construction shouldn't exceed $200,000 but that other expenses such as right-of-way and property acquisition may increase the cost.

"We'll either work around the Laundromat or go right through it," said Brammeier, regarding the Home Town Laundry, 385B Whistle Stop Drive, near the projected path of the road.

Festival 66 liven's up Edwardsville

By Paul Mackle
Staff writer

A Pontiac GTO from California, a blue 1965 Ford Mustang and an Andy Griffith-like police car motored through Edwardsville as the third annual Festival 66 revved up Saturday.

Those were just a few of the 144 vehicular gems that filled Edwardsville with the sounds of antique mufflers on the event's opening day.

Not even the rain kept too many people away, because Edwardsville City Park was jamming by the evening hours with musical stylings for everyone.

"The (afternoon) rain was not too much of a problem because we had many more tents than we've had in the past," said Bill Hurteau, chief executive officer of the Edwardsville/Glen Carbon Chamber of Commerce. "(The crowds) are already picking up tonight."

"This is hometown America, and that's what we're all about," Hurteau said.

After the antique and muscle cars finished their 6 p.m. tour from Edwardsville Middle School to Steak 'N Shake on Troy Road, 17 local artists began the evening by competing in a talent contest and pleasing the growing crowd.

Kristen Williams, 8, of Wood River, belted out "He's So Fine;" Liz Ahrens and Dionne Newsome of Edwardsville sang a tune from the Disney movie "Prince of Egypt;" and Lexi Hotz, a senior at Edwardsville High School, went highbrow with an opera performance.

Although winners were not announced by press time, organizer Jan Miller complimented the performers and the "real positive" audience.

She said this was the first year Madison County has had the talent contest, which will send its winner to the Illinois State Fair in Springfield to compete for the title of best amateur talent in the state. The local winner also will claim $250.

But not everyone was an amateur. A pro artist also was in attendance. Author Thomas Arthur Repp of Seattle was selling copies of his recently released book, "Route 66: The Water parks offer variety of cool summer fun

And at Six Flags St. Louis in Eureka, Mo., Hurricane Harbor is the newest addition

Splash City provides meeting space, a pavilion and a snack and gift shop, and offers swimming lessons, teen dances and a variety of promotions. Raging Rivers Waterpark in Grafton is the oldest in the region, having debuted 10

Another attraction is the park's location. It is about 13 miles north of Alton on the Great River Road (Illinois 3).

"Though Hurricane Harbor will be a separate park, guests visiting Six Flags St. Louis will experience twice the thrills and twice the fun as they get two parks for the price of one," said Thomas J. Iven, vice president and general Admission to Hurricane Harbor is included in a ticket to Six Flags and costs $31.99 for adults, $15.99 for senior citizens and children 48-inches tall and under. A next day upgrade ticket is $10.

Event will pay tribute to Dunham

The Department of English Language and Literature of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville is co-sponsoring a literary tribute to Katherine Dunham at 6 p.m. Friday, June 25, in the second-floor council chambers of the Municipal Building, 301 River Park Drive, East St. Louis.

Co-sponsored by the Eugene B. Redmond Writers Club of East St. Louis, the East St. Louis Cultural Revival Campaign Committee, Drumvoices Revue, Black River Writers/Quiet Time Publishing and the ESL Project, the event commemorates the 90th birthday of Miss Dunham, renowned choreographer and educator. Her birthday is June 22.

Miss Dunham, who taught at SIUE from 1965 to 1982, had an academic background in anthropology, in which she studied the traditions of African and Haitian dance.

There is no admission charge for the family event, which features readings by several poets.

Empires of Amusement."

Repp said that growing up outside of Detroit, he didn't know anything about two-lane highways. Later, he studied the origins of amusement in America in graduate school.

On further research, Repp realized many of the businesses along Route 66 had been started by carnival performers who stopped there to become roadside attractions and ended up staying.

"A lot (of businesses on Route 66) aren't operating anymore and are almost forgotten. Sons and daughters (of the original business owners) are now in their 80s," he said.

"Even though many of the businesses haven't survived, there are still remnants," said his wife, Becky Repp. "And the book tells where they are. We had people ask us what took so long (before a book was written about the long time inhabitants of Route 66)."

Route 66's nickname, "The Mother Road," was coined by John Steinbeck in his classic novel, "The Grapes of Wrath." The road also is called America's Main Street and the Dust Bowl Highway.

Concert planned

"An American Celebration" is the theme of the 14th annual patriotic concert on Sunday, June 27 at St. Paul United Church of Christ, 115 West B Street, Belleville.

Performances will be at 3 and 7 p.m. There is no admission charge. A free-will offering will be taken. Main parking and church entrance are on "C" Street. There is space for vans and buses.

Norm Greenberg will narrate the program, which features the award winning Gospel Children's Choir from the Northside Seventh Day Adventist Church of St. Louis.

Other highlights include the traditional massed choir of approximately 100 voices drawn from 30 or more area churches, the presentation of the colors by the U.S. Transcom Color Guard from Scott Air Force Base and the always popular audience sing-a-longs.

Region has variety of attractions

Many overlook fun 'in their own backyard'

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

It is easy to overlook what's in your own backyard. I know locals who have traveled to foreign countries, yet have never been to the top of the Gateway Arch. There are others who fly all over the world, but do not bother to cross a bridge to get from St. Louis to see the Cahokia Mounds.

I am not saying people should not travel. What I am saying is that they ought to pay a little more attention to what the St. Louis metropolitan area has to offer. Take Grant's Farm, for instance. This is a great attraction with a variety of interesting animals, shows and historical buildings. I drive by the place several times a week, yet never think about going in unless somebody else organizes a group outing. I always enjoy the experience whenever I pay a visit, though. Another attraction people tend to take for granted is Laumeier Sculpture Park in Sunset Hills. It is a great place to take a walk as you look at the giant sculptures.

Of course, Forest Park is home to numerous points of interest. It contains the Zoo, Art Museum, History Museum, Mundy Opera, Jewel Box and all kinds of sports fields and trails.

All of these sites are worth your time.

As a sports nut, I spend many summer evenings at Busch Stadium watching the Cardinals.

Those of us who follow the Redbirds and live in this area probably do not fully appreciate what a treat it is to have the team so close until you meet people who have driven to town from places like Arkansas, Tennessee and Kansas for the sole purpose of seeing a professional baseball game in person.

This week's trivia quiz is on St. Louis metro area sites and attractions.

1. The building at 2658 Delmar Blvd. is now a national historic landmark and a state historic site because it was once the home of what famous musician?

2. Souldard Market, one of the oldest markets in the nation, opened in what year, within five?

3. The village of San Carlos de Misuri is now known by what name?

4. Beer baron Adolphus Busch, Sen. Thomas Hart Benton and poet Sara Teasdale are buried in what area cemetery?

5. A 170-foot catsup bottle overlooks what area city?

6. What state historic site is located at 1551 Seckman Road in Imperial?

7. Which educational institution opened its doors as Elliot Seminary in 1853?

8. What is the official name of the Old Cathedral?

9. What is the world's first steel truss bridge?

10. What do the six flags at Six Flags St. Louis stand for?

ANSWERS:

1. Scott Joplin. 2. 1779, so 1774 to 1784 is acceptable. 3. St. Charles. 4. Bellefontaine Cemetery. 5. Collinsville. It's the Brooks Catsup bottle. 6. Mastodon State Historic Site. 7. Washington University. 8. The Basilica of St. Louis. 9. Eads Bridge, built in 1874. 10. The United States, Missouri, Illinois, Spain, France and Great Britain.

I will host the following upcoming trivia events: St. Louis Community College at Meramec Alumni Association Trivia on Saturday, Oct. 2, call 984-7551.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Entertainment and Trivia Show" at 10 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

Zooline Railroad in 36th year

Attraction has carried over 26 million riders

By Sonia Ahuja
Staff writer

For Alan Quentin, a day's work feels like eight hours of recess.

Quentin is one of about 20 engineers for the Zooline Railroad, an attraction at the St. Louis Zoo.

"It's a wonderful job because I'm outside, and I get to drive a train around the Zoo," Quentin said. "It's a pleasure to come to work because I am working with children and seeing the animals every day."

The Zooline opened for its 36th season of operation March 20. It has carried more than 26 million riders since it first opened in 1963.

The train's tour lasts 20 minutes and takes passengers through tunnels and past animal exhibits along a 1.5-mile track. It runs at a speed of 7 mph.

The Zooline has a total of five trains, each with six passenger cars. Each train can hold up to about 50 people.

Ridership on the train has increased in recent years, said William Boever, assistant Zoo director.

Last year, a record 2.9 million people rode the train, he said.

The Zooline, which stops at four train stations, has been modified a few times since it first opened.

For example, the station near the Children's Zoo was moved slightly twice in the 1980s due to the addition of several attractions, including The Living World, an education center, Boever said.

Additional crew members were added this year, following an accident last October that killed engineer John Forsythe, 67. He died after the train he was operating derailed and the engine overturned.

A "firefighter" now rides along with the engineer in the engine of each train. A conductor remains at the back of the train, as in the past.

The position of firefighter was added as an extra safety precaution. The firefighter can provide an additional pair of hands for assisting with the train's operation, Boever said.

Horoscope

Thursday, June 17
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY: The year ahead could bring you greater access to contacts who can help you realize your ambitious aims.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Forget about political or philosophical differences and have fun with your friends today. Keep all topics light and breezy, especially when meeting someone for the first time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Because your family is so special, invite someone who is away from home over to your place to share in the good times.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your strong leadership qualities continue to be very pronounced today. Now is the time to display these qualities with those who can help shape your future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In reward for looking out for the welfare of someone who has been having a difficult time fending for him or herself, large dividends could be in the offing for you today from another source.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone who has excellent connections might invite you to join his or her plans for the day. Not only will you make some good contacts, you'll have a wonderful time in the process.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Through an undisclosed source who has your best interest at heart, your chances for fulfilling an ambitious objective look good today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A meeting of the minds with someone who has been in opposition to your plans will be responsible for the success you will garner today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have something profitable on the back burner, give it priority attention today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you might initially have misgivings about going along with the will of the majority today, relax and enjoy yourself with them. It'll turn out to be a great day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Recognizing the true value of your talents and abilities will put you in a better bargaining position today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Happier circumstances and an ascending popularity in your social life should be on the rise today helping to make yesterday's problems a dim memory.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though you might not be totally in accord with a family member's views or position, stand by him or her against outside opposition.

The whole thing's preposterous, of course, which is what makes it so much fun. An array of celebrity cameos — from Kristen Johnson to Woody Harrelson to Willie Nelson — makes it all the more engaging.

It was easy to dismiss Myers, a master of characterization, as stupid in his first appearance as Austin Powers. He was. But Myers' brand of idiocy grows on you after multiple viewings.

Myers' Powers is primarily a cartoon figure, aware of — and awash in — his own over-the-topness. He drives a Shaguar. He has visible sweat stains under his arms. His teeth look like abandoned railroad tracks. He's annoying, but he's beguiling, too, because he's so unabashedly exuberant and doesn't care what anyone around him thinks.

Equally adorable is Myers' Dr. Evil, a bald, Goldfinger-like baddie who's out of step with the times and can't communicate with his smart-mouthed son, Scott Evil (Seth Green). They appear on Jerry Springer, where Evil gets into a fight with a Klansman.

He also has trouble with romance. "I can't let my feelings for you get in the way of my taking over the world," he tells Frau Farbissina.

Can Austin get his mojo back? Can a pop-culture hodgepodge that cites "The Exorcist," Wang Chung and the most tender moments of "Jerry Maguire" hand Myers a second hit? Can Elvis Costello keep making cameos in movies ad infinitum?

Yes, yes, and probably. In the meantime, go see "Austin Powers." You'll leave the theater feeling a little soiled but with a smile on your face.

'Internet cafe' coming soon to area library

Remodeled Edwardsville facility will include coffee shop, gift store

By Curtiss Hartley
Staff writer

Patrons of the Edwardsville Library will soon be able to enjoy a good cup of coffee and a good book — or a cruise on the World Wide Web — at the new coffee shop and library friends store.

Workers last week began bringing in portions of the new circulation desk that will be erected across from the existing one. Once the new circulation desk is in place, the old one will be removed, making way for the planned "Internet cafe" coffee shop and gift store.

"We're excited. This has been a year and a half in the planning," Librarian Director Deanne Holshouser said. "We have saved for this for several years," she said.

The total cost of the project is just under $100,000, she said. "This is part of work that needed to be done anyway. This is to provide more circulation terminals, some

"We want to have some really unique things. We'll have things like bookmarks and note cards, and even a holder for a book so you can eat and read."

Deanne Holshouser
Library director

carpet replacement, and a new T-1 line," she said. A T-1 line is a direct, high-capacity Internet connection, which allows fast access to the web.

Currently the library has Internet access in the reference section and in the children's library. "We have a 56k modem now, and we've found that as you add terminals, it slows down. It's just too slow," she said.

The plan is to add one Internet connection in the new coffee shop area. An additional one may be added later, if usage is heavy enough, Holshouser said.

Holshouser said the new area will be a place where visitors can help themselves to coffee, surf the Internet, read at tables or peruse literature-related products at the Library Friends store.

"We want to have some really unique things," Holshouser said. The store currently sells T-shirts, sweatshirts and mugs at the library. "We'll have things like bookmarks and note cards, and even a holder for a book so you can eat and read," she said.

The shop will also have ongoing used-book sales. Holshouser said that the library always has a good stock of donated books and extra copies of books that the library no longer needs.

Holshouser said she expects the work on the new circulation desk to take a week or two. When that is complete, workers will begin installing the wiring for computers and coffee machines.

"The company thinks they'll have the work done by the end of July," Holshouser said. Then it may take some time to get everything together, she said. "I'm hoping we'll have some kind of a grand opening event in September."

"We've ordered the furniture. Now we're working on finding a company to supply the coffee," she said.

The coffee shop and store will be located directly across from the new circulation desk, and will include tables and chairs, computer terminals, a self-serve coffee bar, bookshelves for the used books and space for the library merchandise.
